You both requested a copy of the current draft of the BDCP Detailed Comments. Here it is. As you can see, it is still very much a work in progress. I am working from the revision that Tom Hagler did last weekend, with some late additions that I received yesterday. Tom organized the comments by leading with the issues regarding the deficiencies of the document; the environmental issues do not appear until around page 7 or 8. I plan to reorganize it so that we lead with the substantive environmental issues, e.g., violations of water quality. I was about to begin reviewing the section on impacts to fish when I had to set this aside to work on the briefing paper, so that's where I will pick it up next.

Hey Kathy,

As I have a couple of cross-country trips coming up, would it be possible for me to read some version of the detailed comments? Its likely to be my best opportunity for some quiet time reading.
